

COMS 2013 – a brief summary

Volker Saile

August 28, 2013

Monday 26 August

The investor's point of view in commercialization

The investment process from the company's point of view

Food

Printing Electronics

Dave Blank: Impressive Dutch Landscape

Ray Quintana: Situation in SW of USA

Marc Lamprechts: Tech. problems don't exist – people problems exist

Reinhard Baumann: Printing

G. F. Zhou: Future displays

Peter Russo: Try to find money before you need it

Tuesday 27 August

Linking up with/building the global value chain

Lessons learned

NanoScopy

NanoFacilities

Medical technologies

Don Tennant: The importance of reputation

Albert van den Berg: The entrepreneurial University of Twente

FEI and others: progress in metrology and characterization

Job Elders: Incremental vs. Disruptive

Lee Ayres: Management changes

Pauk van Attekum: The secret of ASML

Paul May: From poacher to gamekeeper

Wednesday 28 August

Entrepreneurial ecosystems

Commercialization from the research organization's point of view

Advanced Materials & Energy

T-Sensors

Rising above the storm - new approaches in technology and innovation education

Gil Herrera: SANDIA – past, present, future

Don Birx: Univ. contributions, creating the right environment for addressing grand challenges

Materials/energy: Photocatalysis – water splitting, New concepts for thermoelectricity,
Coatings (SolMateS), SCHN coatings, Supercaps, Porous layers on substrates, Self-healing materials

Education: How to educate young students, how to enthuse and educate future entrepreneurs

Chris van Hoof: Killer Apps – Health, Fun, Sports

Jos Benschop: The future – Nanolithography roadmap of ASML

Five reasons to register for COMS:

- 1.COMS brings together leaders from all over the world and relevant sectors of industry
- 2.COMS is about creating productive partnerships in an informal setting
- 3.COMS focuses primarily on entrepreneurship and marketable solutions
- 4.COMS offers a powerful environment focused on accelerating commercialization activity among established and emerging micro and nano businesses
- 5.COMS will give you networking opportunity with decision makers & qualified buyers from every sector

Thank you!

COMS 2013 Partners

The “local” organizing team:

Thank you!

Overall management and programme: Miriam Luizink, MESA+

Projectmanagement: Annerie Heesink, MESA+

Financial affairs: José Nijhuis, MESA+

Overall management and programme: Kees Eijkel, Kennispark Twente

Marketing and communications: Janinka Feenstra, Kennispark Twente

Young Technology Award: Nancy Trip, Powered by Twente

Program support: Stein Hansen, MIT, and Dick Koster, NanoNextNL

General support: Sikha Ray and Tamara Bebion. KIT

240 Attendees at COMS2013

Thank you!